Start to Finish

Where the Magic Happens!

Oh boy! There's nothing like building something from nothing. This is where you can let your creative "freak-flag" fly, spread your wings and soar.

Who? What? When? Where? Why? & How?

By the time we turned ten, most of us were told that we were too old to play make-believe or pretend. Some of us believed it.

But the rest of us...

Once upon a time, that book you were reading sparked something inside you. It ignited a light in your imagination calling you come forth and tell a kind of story that you've always dreamed of reading but could never find. For years, the idea gnawed at you, whispering for you to bring it to light, because no one else could. The premise excited you, but then, it frightened you because you feared it was too big and undertaking, requiring more than you believed you had to offer.

One day, though, you decided it was time to face your fears, your Goliath, and stand up to this challenge as only you could. No one else could do this and someone out there, someone you might never meet, was waiting on you to finish your story.

So, you started it, worked on it until it was finished, and finally, published. Then, days, weeks, or maybe even months later, you check your book on Amazon or BN.com and you see five golden stars and the words "Best book I've ever read."

The end.
